

MISS SLACK MAKES AWARDS AT M.W.S.A.A. ANNUAL EVENT, ORIGINAL FLOOR SHOW GIVEN

TEAMS PRESENT SKITS
Semi-Annual Meeting to Be Held Friday
ATTENDANCE LARGE

Bottle-Blowing Act and Recitations Score Hits

THE M.W.S.A.A. held its annual banquet last night in the Union Grill Room. Besides the staff of the M.S.P.E., fifty-seven people were present.

After dinner had been served, Miss Slack distributed the awards. Babette Dunham, the manager of the Intercollegiate Basketball team, then presented Miss Slack with a clock, in appreciation of the work she had done for the team.

Beatrice Barclay spoke about the semi-annual meeting of the Association which will be held on Friday afternoon after the annual meeting of the Women's Union. The important business at this meeting will include the election of next year's officers, and three amendments to the constitution, which are posted on the R.V.C. notice-board.

Kay Dike opened the floor show with three current musical hits—"Thanks for the Memory," "Double-Dare You" and "Whistle While You Work." The Basketball team lined up, and each recited an original verse. An exhibition of trucking was given by Florence Lincoln and Barbara Barnard, to the accompaniment of "Bei Mir Bist Du Schon" played by Kay Dike. This was followed by two humorous recitations by Marjorie McInnes. The Archery Team presented scenes from the history of archery, featuring William Tell and his son, Hiawatha and Minnehaha, and Dan Cupid. Dora Proven, appropriately costumed, danced an Irish jig.

The next item on the program was "Dizzy Ditties by the Ski Team." This consisted of "James McGill" and "The More We Are Together" played with Coca-Cola bottles, and a ski song accompanied by Peggy Johansson on her piano-accompanied. This was followed by a skit by the Hockey Team entitled "Time Out Does Not Pay" or "Crime Marches on," with Ruby Smith as commentator.

The program concluded with the

ANNUAL APPEALING FOR CAMPUS SHOTS

Prize for Best Campus Life Picture Is Offered

WITH the campus year almost at its close, final arrangements are being made in filling up the necessary sections of the McGill Annual. Lists on the Arts Building's notice board will be taken down by Friday. Students who intend to buy the Annual are requested to sign the lists before Friday. However, supplementary lists will be put up next week for the sake of those who were unable to sign before now.

The "Campus Life" section of the Annual is still seeking candid camera shots. The dances and balls held in the past offer excellent material that would be gladly received. Shots of football and hockey games, skiing parties and vacation scenes are also on the wanted list. There are about 40 pictures required to fill the "Campus Life" section. Free Annuals are being given as prizes for the best contributions, and the board states that pictures will be returned to the owners if they wish. They are to be handed in to the Tuck Shop or to any member of the Annual Board. Class and Brevity write-ups are also required for the competition of the Annual of 1938.

COLLEGE FLIERS PLANNING FALL GLIDING CAMP

TERM OF TWO WEEKS

Club Executive Aims at Enrollment of Fifteen Members

TO CAMP NEAR HUDSON

Instruction to Be Made for Nominal Charge; Living Extra

FOLLOWING the leadership of English Universities and carrying out the long cherished dream of the originators of the McGill Flying Club, the students of McGill will next fall participate in the first regular gliding camp and instruction school to be held in Canada.

The Executive of the McGill Flying Club have long had under consideration plans for this important event in Canadian gliding and careful preparations are being made to insure its success. The Gliding School will operate during the two weeks preceding the opening of the first term next fall, that is from September 18th to October 2nd and will be open to all students attending the university.

The University authorities have signified their approval of the plan and are taking considerable interest in the preliminary preparations. Dr. L. Richardson, the president of the McGill Flying Club, has appointed Jim Simpson and Tom Kierans of the Engineering Faculty to be in charge of these preparations.

The site of the Camp is one known to the club for some time and is located on the Lake of Two Mountains near Hudson. Although the area has seen some gliding activity in the past as a result of the work of the Maisonneuve Gliding Club, this is the first occasion on which it will be used to the extent planned by the McGill Club.

It is the intention of the club to

WOMEN'S UNION TO MEET TOMORROW

Change of Constitution Under Consideration

The Annual Meeting of the Women's Union will be held on Friday, March 18th at 2.30 p.m. in the Common Room in R.V.C. All members of the Women's Union are urged to attend. Business to be considered includes:

1. Reports of the clubs and societies under the Women's Union.
  2. Report from delegates to the National Conference of Canadian University Students.
  3. Consideration of the advisability of changing the constitution to make the office of Vice-President elective, the President of the M.W.S.A.A. remaining a member of the executive of the Women's Union, but being relieved of some of the responsibility.
  4. Consideration of the whole future policy of the Women's Union, and the advisability of spending the Savings fund on the establishment of Women's Union quarters within R.V.C. itself.
  5. Discussion of the current policy of making gifts to charities at Christmas, its advisability and constitutionality.
- The executive would be glad to hear of any other business which should be brought up. The executive is most anxious that the members of the Union should come ready to discuss the above questions.

MACCABEAN CIRCLE ELECTIONS TODAY

The annual election meeting of the Maccabean Circle will be held at 5.30 today, in the Union Ballroom. No slates will be announced for the elective officers, but candidates will be selected in open nomination prior to the election.

The positions to be filled are those of president, vice-president (this position must be filled by a woman), secretary, treasurer, and two members at large.

The last meeting of the society will be in the form of a symposium to be held on Sunday afternoon, March 20, at three o'clock in the Union reading room. All members will be asked to express their ideas, the subject under discussion will be introduced by Margery Bercoff, Sid Freidman, and Moe Malin. Those topics under discussion will include the activities of the past year, probably programs for the coming year, and general methods for keeping up interest in the Maccabean Circle.

CAREER TALKS IN FALL ARE PLANNED

Topics Include Teaching, Banking, and Others

Course Of Talks To Be Organized For Next Session

THE reception given to the talk upon Insurance by Mr. E. E. Duckworth of the Sun Life Assurance Company last Monday has encouraged the University in co-operation with the Students' Council to plan a series of such talks for the early part of next session. Originally it was proposed that two or three more experts in their particular field should be invited to speak this session, but unfortunately two of those who had expressed their willingness to assist have been called out of town and this would mean postponing their talks until April when the nearness of examinations would undoubtedly militate against an attendance large enough to justify such meetings.

It has therefore been decided that a regular series should be planned for next year and a joint committee representing the University Administration and the Students' Society is being set up to make the necessary arrangements. Among the fields of employment which it is hoped the talks will cover are the Pulp and Paper Industry, Accountancy, Banking, the Civil Service, and Teaching. Complete details will be published at the beginning of the Fall term.

BRIDGE CLUB ENDS YEARS' ACTIVITY

Prizes Are Awarded to Evening's Play Winners

The final meeting of the year was held on Tuesday with a near-record turnout of fifty bridge-players. The following were elected to office for next season:

President, Doug Fullerton; Vice-Presidents, Bill Jeffrey, Elaine Painter; Secretary, Jean-Gilmour, Treasurer, Charlie Gale.

After the tournament a party was held, and prizes were presented to the winners of the evening's play. It was also announced that the highest six teams on the season's play would be chosen to play against the professors next Saturday night. The first eight teams on the aggregate will enter the play-offs, to be held next week. The final percentage is based on the five best scores made during the year, and the eight leading teams are as follows:

- |                        |       |
|------------------------|-------|
| 1. Merifield-Fullerton | 63.8% |
| 2. Jeffrey-Snyder      | 61.2  |
| 3. Norris-Archambault  | 59.1  |
| 4. Piper-Patterson     | 58.2  |
| 5. Dunn-Henders        | 57.8  |
| 6. Wilson-Bayne        | 56.9  |
| 7. Pugh-Robert         | 56.8  |
| 8. Gilmour-Gale        | 55.8  |

With another year behind them and a set of exams yet to come, the Players' Club meets today at 5 o'clock in the Union Ballroom for the last time before going into spring seclusion. The executive has urgently requested that all members attend the meeting this afternoon in order to elect next year's executive. The slate of nominations made so far is as follows:

Besides the elections, the program includes a resume of the activities of the past season and also the discussion of plans for summer play reading. And so with such successes as "The Shining Hour" and "The Wild Duck" in its wake, the club, with its Workshop, goes, after today's meeting, to its annual resting place until it is resurrected next fall.

MINOGUE AND ZATZ AWARDED MAJOR ORATORICAL TROPHIES DURING ANNUAL PRIZE NIGHT

FORSEY ADDRESSES R.V.C. '39 BANQUET

Speaking at the class banquet of R.V.C. '39 on Tuesday last, Professor Eugene Forsey of the Economics Department discussed his travels in Dalmatia, narrating many humorous incidents which occurred during his two trips there. He also described many difficulties in various places. Chief among these was the variety of languages—in some places Yugoslavian, in others German.

Mr. Forsey pointed out the excellence of Dalmatia as a place of historical, artistic and architectural interest. After the address, picture postcards and photographs were exhibited, showing the native towns and costumes and buildings. Mr. Forsey was thanked by Maria Harding.

INTELLIGENCE TESTS ON PRIMARY SCHOOL PUPILS DEPLORED

Kingston Board of Education Receives Protest Against Practice of Queen's Students

FOR PSYCHOLOGY TESTS

Students Think Protests Stupid—Assert Tests Invaluable to Teachers

Kingston, Ont., March 16.—(C.U.P.)—Kingston's municipal board of education registered a protest recently against Queen's psychology students using local primary school children for intelligence tests in child psychology courses.

The Kingston Whig-Standard, commenting editorially, deplored the practice and suggested that if permission is to be granted, such should be given this year.

The local daily claimed, however, that if the local children are to be subjected to such tests by inexperienced students, their parents' permission should be obtained first.

Leading Queen's psychology students believe the protests of the board and the newspaper to be unnecessary and "rather stupid," as one senior remarked. The test employed is the Stanford revision of the Binet-Simon test by Terman. It is claimed by students that the tests can be invaluable aids to teachers in diagnosing a child's real ability.

MASONIC CLUB

"Some Canadian Difficulties," will be the subject of an address to be delivered by Prof. Cyrus MacMillan, Ph.D., at the annual meeting of the McGill Masonic Club tomorrow night at 6 p.m. in the Union Grill Room.

At this meeting, which will take the form of a supper gathering, the annual election of officers will take place. A good attendance is asked for by the Secretary, as the Club is very fortunate in having Dr. MacMillan address the final meeting.

ENGINEERS VOTE CONFIDENCE IN SOCIETY'S HEAD

DISSENTING MINORITY

Meeting of Record Length Reviews Achievements of Year

PLAN NEW CONSTITUTION

Managing Board Expresses Daily's Stand in Present Case

(Ed. Note: In yesterday's Daily there was a news item concerning the activities of the Engineering Undergraduate Society: It was asserted by some members of that society that the Daily story presented one side only of the case. The Managing Board, wishing to be impartial, stated that it would be glad to print in today's issue an account of the meeting, an account which was considered to be a fair and impartial story written by those who criticized yesterday's story. Readers are invited to compare today's account with that carried yesterday.)

A vote of confidence in the executive of the Engineering Undergraduate Society was approved by an overwhelming majority at a turbulent meeting of the Society in the Engineering Building on Tuesday night. A record-breaking number of students attended the meeting, which lasted over an hour and a half. Messrs. Ross, Dugal and others had previously cast aspersions on the political integrity of the executive in letters to the Daily where the executive was accused, in effect, of ignoring the constitution of the Society in order to further the political aspirations of themselves and their friends. The fun started when Messrs. Dugal and Ross, in their letters, stated that the executive was "stupid."

R.V.C. MUSIC CLUB

The R.V.C. Music Club will hold its final meeting of the session this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the new R.V.C. Common Room. The meeting is to take the form of a tea at which elections for the 1938-39 Session will take place. Nominations will be called for from the floor, or may be added to the slate posted in the Arts Building Common Room and in R.V.C. At present the slate reads as follows:

President: Elizabeth Sharp. Vice-President: Peggy Lamb. Secretary-Treasurer: 1, Mary Gibb; 2, Nora Richardson; 3, Jean Macdonald. R.V.C. Representative: 1, Joyce Hopkins; 2, Mercy Kellogg. Music Representative: 1, Marjorie Schofield; 2, Betty Hagmeier.

The Executive announced last night that they wished to urge everyone interested to attend and to bring suggestions for next year's programmes.

I.V.C.F. MEETING

The I.V.C.F. will hold an open meeting next Saturday night, when the speaker will be the Rev. John Linton, B.A. B.Th. This meeting will be held in the Franklin Memorial Hall of Stanley Presbyterian Church (corner Westmount and Victoria avenues) at 8.00 p.m. Rev. John Linton is now a resident of New York, but previous to this he lived in Montreal for 30 years. He has been the pastor of Point St. Charles Baptist Church, and of High Park Baptist Church, Toronto. While in Montreal, he was known as the "Football Parson" because of his enthusiastic playing on football teams. For the past few years, he has been engaged in evangelistic work and he will speak to the group on some phase of this work.

All students are invited to attend this meeting, and refreshments will be served at the close.

DEBATE ON 'LIBERTY'

Reford Cup Debaters Speak on Czech Independence

FAVOR NEUTRAL CANADA

Second Year Arts Students Defeat Freshmen to Win Undergraduate Trophy

"THE highest end of life is our own existence, and liberty is only a means to this end," was the principal argument advanced by Howard Minogue in his victorious argument against the resolution "Resolved That Liberty is not a means to an end, but is the highest end in itself," in the final debate for the Talbot Papineau Cup, held in the Union Ballroom last night. Glyn Owen was the other finalist, and in arguing for the motion pointed out that the essence of liberty consisted of the toleration of the minority point of view by the majority. He maintained that this was the only way in which true pursuit of knowledge and truth can be achieved, the latter being the ultimate end of human endeavour.

Mr. Minogue in refuting this argument stated that in practice it was necessary to place certain restrictions on minorities, in order to safeguard those measures of freedom we now have. By virtue of last night's debate Minogue was the winner of the Talbot Papineau Cup emblematic of debating supremacy at McGill this year.

In the second debate of the evening for the Arts' Undergraduate Shield, Sydney Barza and Alec Stalker of second year, upheld the resolution "Resolved That It Is Not For Knowledge That We Come To College," against the freshman team of John Parker and Arthur Campbell. The affirmative speakers stressed the fact that the chief benefits of a college education is not the knowledge that we derive from books and lectures but from the participation in extra-curricular and social activities of college life. (Continued on Page Four.)

GERMAN CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

Dora Wright Is President; Mary MacKenzie, Treasurer

Nora Wright was elected President of the German Club for the coming year at a meeting held last night in the Union Cafeteria. Other officers elected were: Mary MacKenzie, Treasurer; Mary-Ellen Rossiter, Secretary and Carlo Bos, Vice-President.

The function started at 7 p.m. when supper was served to the forty odd members who attended. Between courses folk songs were sung in which everybody joined with gusto.

After the election, Herr Muller-Hinkler, the local representative of the North German Lloyd, provided entertainment by presenting several movies. The first was about skiing in the Arlberg and showed the famous Austrian skier, Hannes Schneider, in some of his most spectacular feats. A talkie on motor roads built during the past few years in Germany followed. It represented a trip taken along these roads through some of the most picturesque parts of Germany. Views of Munich, Cologne, Heidelberg and Berlin were interspersed with scenes of country life along the Rhine.

The beauties of Vienna and the easy-going nature of her music-loving population was the theme of the next film. The program ended with a travel picture on the West Indies.

The meeting closed with the singing of "Ade zur Gute Nacht," the German equivalent of "Goodnight Ladies."

McGill's City Hall

The Union is McGill's City Hall. Palm trees and spitons are lacking, of course, but on the other hand the august source of the recent and notable Montreal Bill has neither reading-room nor billiard tables. In most other respects, however, the institutions are similar.

The civil servants of the student body might be considered to be those who work for the various campus clubs and societies—Red and White chorines, Players' Club ticket sellers, Daily reporters and so on. They are there to work, to keep the wheels turning, and generally rise to the top in their various departments on their merits. Best of all, they take their pay in pleasure received.

The Athletic Office and the office of Mr. G. H. Fletcher would seem to be permanent Commissions whose aim is to correlate, control, and finally to find some rhyme or reason behind extracurricular activities, and with a monumental burden of correcting mistakes committed by part-time executives, a department which alone would ensure an infinite term to the existence of the Commissions.

The Tuck Shop is a common feature of both our and Montreal's City Halls. We, however, hold a considerable edge in this field in view of the superior nature of the attendants, who are obliging to an extent impossible to anyone employed by the City, and, moreover, have more than ordinary conversational powers.

We again assume a lead over the downtown article in the matter of a cafeteria, which we could class as the Department of the Interior, although perhaps it would be a bad idea to put the thought into the head of the city fathers as it might run into a considerable output by the taxpayer.

Now we come to our aldermen and Mayor. These men are elected by the city and the student body in exactly the same manner. The representation is by ward or faculty, each group having one representative on the council, no matter what its size. With us, the electorate also chooses the Union officials, which have no counterpart downtown, and the president of the Debating Union, whose position in the larger City Hall is assimilated to that of Mayor.

The main difference between our and Montreal's Council is that we have no pork-barrel. There is no loot to be divided. Nobody gets paid anything, and nobody has any contracts to hand out. Our men just decide where the money is going to go, they never set eyes on it. Consequently, we get sincere government. Our Council has never passed anything resembling the Montreal Bill yet, and, if things stay as they are, never will.

The Call of the Wild

Old War Alliances keep peace

Till war sets up his din

Then, leagued to help each other out,
They help each other in.

The above little epigram, a journalist's conception of how verse should be written, appeared during the War to End War in 1914. However, even at this late date in this year of enlightenment 1938, it somehow seems strangely appropriate.

The papers greet us with a fresh crisis every morning, and despite the messages of goodwill which are being exchanged among the chancelleries of Europe, peculiarly enough we receive the impression that something naughty is being contemplated.

The times of testing is now approaching. All good college students have now an opportunity of showing just whether all the lovely pacifist resolutions they passed in piping times of peace were mere rhetorical mouthings or straight promises.

One of the many bright ideas of the "peace at any price" advocates is to avoid conscription by hieing them to the wild northland, where with rod, harpoon, and gun they may indulge in plain living and high thinking, only to emerge after the debacle and restore civilization to a shattered world.

It certainly seems as though the hour had struck. Britain has pledged her support to France, and Hitler is doing more than merely casting envious eyes at Lithuania. The only answer seems to be "Mobilization and War" in as large a type as the front page can take.

Students who have pledged yourselves to pacifism, Oxford Union men who resolved firmly that under no circumstances you would fight for King and Country, disciples of Gandhi, do you hear the call of the wild, or was it just an idealistic gesture, a great big bluff?

We await your answer with interest; To the woods? or the trenches? Which will it be?

We would very much like to know.

Weekly Review

By S. J. C.

Danger Ahead.

In Europe today the democracies are reaping the grand result following their diplomacy of the last five years. They refused to enforce collective security and support the League of Nations on the grounds that they were avoiding war. They were supposed to be saving the peace of the world. Today we look at the fine mess their actions have created. The possibility of a world war is greater than it has been since 1918. And with the danger so near let us look at what would happen in case of a world conflagration. As things stand now the fascists are headed for victory in Spain. Mussolini and Hitler are entrenched at the key of the Mediterranean.

A submarine base at Bilbao can blockade the French coast and play havoc with the British line to the Far East. Gibraltar is in great peril. The French line of communications to her colonies is blocked by the Italian base at the Balearics. And most important of all, the French army will have to be divided among those fronts—Germany, Italy and the Pyrenees. All in all the Rome-Berlin axis is in a fairly favourable position to destroy France. With France gone the domination of Italy and Germany in Eastern Europe is probable.

The big question in this whole situation is the U.S.S.R. How strong is Russia after the recent purges? The power of Russia could swing the result, if she is as strong as her people claim.

British Foreign Policy.

With this state of affairs on the continent, and with her far flung Empire so gravely threatened, Britain's foreign policy, as adopted by Prime Minister Chamberlain, is most stupid. He clings to a policy of straight rearmament with no commitments, or action to seize the opportunity for preserving peace. Ever since 1931 British foreign policy has been leading the world straight towards world war. First the destruction of the League of Nations and collective security and now rearmament. We all must agree that, under the present circumstances, British rearmament is necessary, but there is no reason for Chamberlain to accept the certainty of a world war. And he is doing just that.

In his last speech before the House he even refused to defend the independence of Czechoslovakia, or to stand by France and support her with a continental army. Evidently the plan is to surround Britain with a wall of steel and isolate her from the continent. The whole trouble with this is that it won't work. The only purpose it serves is to shift the battlefield from the continent to the British Isles. It is interesting to note that in that same speech Mr. Chamberlain said that Britain is in no way committed to fight for Austria or Czechoslovakian independence. Evidently he has forgotten about the Geneva Covenant. Or perhaps he hasn't.

Et Tu Austria.

It would be boring to relate the events which led to the complete absorption of Austria by her powerful neighbour. The local press has covered the matter, but the misinterpretation of facts has been terrific. In the first place, the press took great pains to describe the "jubilation" and "enthusiasm" with which the Austrian nation greeted Hitler and his troops. And yet Hitler's own actions show that he expected to be defeated at the plebiscite scheduled for last Sunday. Mobs, to be sure greeted Hitler, but they are such a small part of a nation. And then too the opinion of Austrians outside the Fatherland is decidedly anti-Nazi. This, therefore, does not resemble Anschluss, but is good old military occupation. The German police is purging the nation and the "dirty work", so necessary for the establishment of Nazi civilization, "prepares" Austria for its new place in the world. Before this, Hitler's state resembled more closely another flimsy dictatorial structure which has arisen from the post-war chaos. Hitler's influence at home was none too sure, and his power uncertain. But this Austrian coup has placed him at the end of a mid-European Empire. Germany is powerful once more.

'Tis the Last.

This I understand is the last column of the year. I would have liked very much to sound a note of optimism but under the present circumstances it is impossible. If things keep going as they are there is trouble ahead. We can only hope that something will turn up to prevent the catastrophe that threatens the world.

From whatever point of view we look at the international situation, it is evident that betrayal and faithlessness in the democratic camp has placed us in this precarious position.

Literally Speaking

By GLYN OWEN

Since we began writing this column, everything has been coming our way. Especially ripe fruit. Over-ripe fruit, in fact. To all kind friends who have been sending tomatoes, canned and otherwise, to the above address, we give thanks.

We can now sum up. Our first column expressed our firm belief that literature should consist entirely of epigrams; compressed wisdom, "infinite riches in a little room," around which the reader can build his own essays and his own novels. Literature should be intellectual; it should make people think if it is to be truly beneficial.

We realize, however, that few people are capable of thought. They require detailed explanations before they even begin to grasp any idea. As a matter of fact, they hate thinking, they hate new ideas; they prefer to build a cushion of illusion around themselves and float through life on that. Our second column was an ironical plea for the retention of illusions. Few understood the irony, as we had anticipated.

Therefore, we continued with a series of essays on what various authors of today think of life, starting with the optimists and finishing up with the pathologists. They are not always typical: we preferred to write about men we knew well rather than be unjust. They are all, be it noted, university men. Even the most cheerful of them is somewhat ironical with all his wholehearted enjoyment of existence. All save one are novelists: the novel is the modern form of expression.

Clarence Day, the philosopher, is kindest to us. He treats us as monkeys, and ascribe all our peccadilloes and eccentricities and stupidities to our simian ancestry.

Christopher Morley writes of us as human beings, and likes us for being human; but then, he has never really suffered; his work is not written with blood and tears. He is a romanticist because he is not a great artist. Most college graduates fall into his category. They never seem to realize what life is. He has kept his illusions, and his highest strains, therefore, are those of Pollyanna.

Cabell is an aristocratic Virginian with a half-yearning for the days before the Civil War. A pseudo-aesthete of the genteel school, he "writes perfectly of beautiful happenings" to escape from the hot polloi, from the Babbitts, from reality. He is not even amusing because his romanticism has turned sour. Let us leave him to his ivory tower.

Sinclair Lewis is the author of Babbitt. Nuff said. As such, he received the Nobel prize in 1930, just eight years too late. The Europeans who gave him that prize said in effect, "We always knew America was Hell with the lid on. Now an American has confessed it. We give this award to the men who let us say, 'We told you so.'" Arrowsmith was a fine book, but not a great one. Elmer Gantry, The Man Who Knew Coolidge, and Dodsworth were repetitive potboilers. None of those books equalled Babbitt or merited the Nobel Prize. Lewis damned America in the eyes of Europe when he wrote that book, and we are not insulting the United States, as our "American correspondent" seems to think we are, when we say that Babbitt does not express the true America. Lewis was an ultra-sensitive victim of Babbitt, but fundamentally he is a Babbitt himself, as he confessed. His latest book shows all his fundamental sentimentality for the Babbitt mind. Lewis never got below the surface of America; he is tossed around as much as his characters are; his works have no meaning, therefore.

Aldous Huxley is a pessimist like Cabell, but unlike Cabell, he does not seek to escape. He burrows his nose in rottenness until he can see nothing wholesome in life and no hope for the future save in the passivity which is death.

Joyce, on the other hand, with all his limitations—superficiality and self-pity—has not allowed life to get the better of him. What

Overtones

By DIAL TWISTER

Some time ago we had occasion to mention in this column the fact that, given the opportunity to "make good" right here at home, Canadian radio artists would relinquish their search for success in the United States. Such a state of affairs, we said, would result in a purely Canadian body of radio artists, which in time would be second to none. As a final proof of this contention we should here like to relate the biography of one of the CBC's star singers, who was born in Toronto, and has now come back there.

She was a nice little girl with big brown eyes and her parents wanted her to be a school teacher. Because she was an obedient little girl, she studied hard and graduated from normal school as a kindergarten specialist and waited for her first occasional teaching job. But all the time Sarah Siegel wanted to be a radio star. It was no idle dream so she practised at the piano and wrote songs in her spare time. Then she found a partner and together they made their radio debut.

Deception forced itself into her life for the first time. . . . Sarah changed her name to Sally and kept her dates with the microphone for several weeks before she mustered up enough courage to confess to her parents. Then the duo became a trio and teaching became a secondary consideration. A radio career was Sarah's one burning obsession. By this time (1930) she had won over family opposition enough to make "Sair Lee" her radio name and she progressed from local sustainers in Toronto to special engagements with Percy Faith's nation network programme, "Gaiety and Romance."

In 1935 Sair went to New York to visit a married sister and WHN gave her a programme all her own, "Songs at the Piano." The young vocalist appeared on this daily feature at ten in the morning and at night sang blue songs for the habitués of a smart little cafe in the Fifties known as "Escargot D'Or." At Christmas time Sair came home to Toronto to be bridesmaid at a wedding. Geoffrey Waddington was just about to open a special engagement at the Royal York and he asked Sair to remain as his vocalist. She sang with the Waddington orchestra until June and then went to the Brant Inn to appear with Ferdie Mowry's orchestra.

During her stay at the popular resort a visitor from South Bend, Indiana, heard her songs and soon after Sair found herself on the train with a contract to sing at the smart Lido Club in South Bend. After that came an engagement with "Matinee Melodies" over the Mutual network and finally a place on the NBC feature, "Club Matinee" which now is an international exchange feature in Canada. By this time Sair felt she owed her family another visit, so she came back once more and CBC re-introduced her to the nation network in the programme, "Songs at the Piano," broadcast from Toronto, Tuesdays at 5.30 p.m. E.S.T.

Skipping about for radio and night club engagements is no hardship for Sair. She loves to travel and she likes a life in which nothing comes too easily. "I like to work hard for everything I get, then I don't feel so guilty about giving up teaching," admits this runaway school marm.

Sair has no favourites and few prejudices. . . . but she does take off her shoes when she is playing her own accompaniments for a broadcast. She always beats time with her feet and the noise disturbs her. She is an experienced camp councillor, loves swimming and tennis, writes songs as a hobby, and has had two short stories accepted.

MUSIC

CONSERVATORIUM STUDENTS IN RECITAL.

A group of talented young performers, students at the McGill Conservatorium of Music, was heard in recital last night at the Conservatorium Hall. A wide range of composers were represented, some of the older and lesser known works being particularly interesting.

Three pianists were heard, Elizabeth Schwob, Ethel Renout and William Stevens. Miss Schwob played well in Brahms's Intermezzo in B, and "The Shoemaker," an ingenious little program piece by Holst. Miss Renout played a Chopin Nocturne with fine feeling, and was even better in a charmingly delicate "Danse" by Debussy. William Stevens came last in the program with works by Debussy and Rachmaninoff.

Leonard Starkey, clarinetist, played the Andante from the Mozart Quintette with good intonation and even tone. Two other

Correspondence

The Editor, McGill Daily:

Dear Sir—Would you be so kind as to publish the following statement, that I, Ian Shaw, am in no way connected with the Students' Christian Movement and that I have never attempted to collect any money for their present financial campaign.

I have recently received several complaints to the effect that those who were in any way connected with the Revue of 1938 for their co-operation during the past few months. It is not often that such spirit and co-operation is evident in such a large organization.

I particularly wish to thank all the girls who turned out for the chorus early in December, and who worked so hard. Much of the success of the Show was due to them. There were a great many students who wrote music and skits, or who applied for positions on the staff or cast, whose services were not required. Thank you for your efforts and I hope that next year you will be more fortunate.

Also I wish to express my appreciation to the heads of the various committees for their earnest and efficient work throughout the months of preparation. And in conclusion I would like to mention the work done by Kenny Dunn, Jack Waud, Ward O'Connor, and Chippy Molson, who wrote the music for the waltz chorus. Without their advice and help it would have been difficult to put on the Show that we did.

Wishing the incoming executive the best of luck,
Sincerely,
DAN DOHENY.

March 16, 1938.

The Editor, McGill Daily:
Dear Sir—Through the medium of your columns may I express my sincere thanks to all those who nominated me and supported me in the recent Debating Union Society elections; also my congratulations to Howard Minogue on his election.

Sincerely yours,
HOWARD G. BAUGH.

"TO THE CAMPUS AT LARGE."

The Editor, McGill Daily:
Dear Sir,—In view of all the cowardly slander that has, we hate to admit, emanated from so-called Engineers in the past few days, we should like to say a few things about the recent jealous activities of the only "clique" that has existed in Engineering in the past three years.

This "clique" made several absolutely false accusations which naturally they were unable to substantiate when asked to do so. They made utter fools of themselves at the recent meeting of the Under-graduates Society that it seems a pity to mention them at all. After the meeting, which supported the executive wholeheartedly, had laughed them down, do you suppose they apologized or admitted their mistakes to the Society? Not for a moment. One of them had the conceit to put his speech word for word in yesterday's Daily, and furthermore demanded an apology.

Two talented violinists were heard, Fanny Kirschenbaum and Samuel Schecter. Veracini's early eighteenth century sonata have been revived and published since the World War, and wisely so, for they contain much that is best in early Italian violin music. Mr. Schecter gave a vigorous, well-colored performance of two movements from the Sonata in E minor. The familiar third movement from Mozart's D Major Concerto, played by Miss Kirschenbaum was perhaps the best item of the evening. It was always appropriately fresh and delicate, in the best Mozartian style. Miss Kirschenbaum plays with good tone and fine perception, we shall be hearing more of this young violinist in the future.

David Levenson, cellist, played well in a rather dull but difficult Golttermann Concerto. Musically and straightforward in his interpretation, we should like to hear Mr. Levenson in a more suitable work.

Sylvia Pat Kennedy, the only singer of the evening, was heard in two groups. First came two Elizabethan love lyrics from Morley's collection, and best of all, Dowland's "Come Again." Cyril Scott's "Immortality" and "Blackbird's Song" composed the second group. Miss Kennedy used a small but pleasant voice to good advantage.
R. A. M. and R. D. R.

from one of the executive who stated that his actions showed clearly what kind of person he was. One other who deserves mention—whenever it rains the worms will stooge who kept time was the first to be pecked on the head. However, men of his calibre seldom fail to create an impression!!!

We have a more serious point to mention. We feel that due to the complete irresponsibility displayed by Mr. Ross in the statements he made and the way he went about making them, that he should be asked to resign from the Scarlet Key Society. He no longer represents Engineering in any way.

Had these people offered any kind of apology or concession, after being openly ridiculed, we would have been only too willing to drop the whole matter. We refrained from writing the Daily right after the meeting in the belief that letters of apology would be forthcoming. Since they were not, we are stating our feeling in an attempt to correct the impression caused by previous articles and letters in the Daily.

Very sincerely,
D. C. McCallum, President.
P. A. Duchastel, Vice-Pres.
J. K. McKechnie, Treas.

BAD POETRY CAN BE BAD EVERYTHING OR GOOD BAD VERSE, STATES PROFESSOR FROST

"It is gratifying to see how many people are interested in bad poetry," quipped Professor George Frost as he began his lecture on "Bad Poetry" last night in the Tower Room. He went on to say that there were two categories into which bad poetry may be divided; (1) bad bad verse, which has bad rhythm, bad meter, bad everything, and (2) good bad verse, in which case either (a) the poet has no sense of humor, or (b) the poet has a sense of humor but lapses into bathos. We should, however, be careful in judging whether poetry is good or bad, as the connotation on a word changes as the centuries drift by. To put force to this statement Professor Frost read a neat little lyric wherein the true love of the poet gave him as a token of her affection "a wild razzberry."

One Phineas Fletcher, a bard of the 17th century, was then touched on and a few selected readings from "The Purple Island" were read. "The Purple Island," it seems, was the metaphor used by Phineas to designate man. He began by giving a detailed description of those "sentinels of the mouth," the teeth, then the tongue, and from thence to the lower regions.

The 18th century is an age which is a veritable gold mine for the collector of bad poetry. This period being one of scientific advancement, it is natural that a few gems on the subject should have been written. One of the best is on vaccination, which begins, "Innoculation, heavenly maid, descend!" Mrs. Anne Taylor Gilbert, the writer of a little volume entitled, "Original Poems for Infant Minds," was extensively read, wherein Mrs. Gilbert gives sundry and assorted advice to infant minds.

In our own day Julia Moore, "The Sweet Singer of Michigan," gives a classic apology for all bad poetry. Now, kind friends, what I have wrote, I hope you will pass o'er, And not criticize as some have done, Hitherto heretofore."

D.W.M.—The Dartmouth.

Lancaster, Pa.—Professor Charles Spotts believes that the fellow who has a long list of telephone numbers in his date book stands a better chance of getting a good wife than the boy with a "steady" girl friend.

Prof. Spotts made the statement at a Franklin and Marshall College seminar on love and marriage conducted by the Student Christian Association. Prof. Spotts told the students to cultivate as many friendships as they could. Said he: "Out of them may spring one which will grow into love."

"I'm selling pencils to raise money for our free lunch fund. A lot of kids at the school would have to go without lunch if we didn't give it to them. Now, we need money and you need pencils. How many, please?"

YACHT CLUB PLANS ACTIVE SEASON FOR FORTHCOMING YEAR

Two Meets, M.I.T. and R.M.C., on Schedule

MEETING TODAY

Officers to Be Elected—Preliminary Tryouts for Crew

THE executive of the McGill Sailing Club is laying plans for an active spring season. The Club has been invited to participate in the semi-annual regatta of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and also in the Canadian meet held by R.M.C. In preparation for these activities the Club will meet to arrange the details. Also on the agenda will be the annual election of officers, and the presentation of the annual reports by the retiring executive.

The M.I.T. invitation specified that the races would be held on either the first or second week-end in May; the Kingston gathering will be held later in the same month, sometime after the conclusion of final exams in most faculties. At the forthcoming meeting applications will be received from those who care to make the trip, either as spectators or with the hope of making the team. Plans are being made to arrange the transportation so that the group will arrive the day before the meet, thus allowing the Club to hold preliminary try-outs for prospective skippers and crew, while the spectators could use the opportunity to inspect the town.

MEETING AT 5 P.M.

The meeting, which will be held at 5 p.m. to permit everyone interested to turn out, will be fully publicized with notices and posters giving details of the date and place. Anyone interested who has not joined the Club will be welcomed at the meeting without further formality; members will be notified by phone to ensure a representative attendance for the elections.

CLASS OF '38

BERT LOVE

THE Senior Track team and McGill will lose a valued member this Spring when Bert Love receives his degree in Commerce. Bert came into this world April 2, 1915, and following public school work at Cowansville High and the Montreal High Schools entered McGill in 1934, enrolling in the School of Commerce.

Bert gathered in his laurels on the field as the was a member of the Senior Track team for the last two years, and previously on the Intermediate squad. One of those high-flyers, Bert brought the Intercollegiate Pole Vault championship to McGill in 1936. Last fall Bert dropped his title on a mud-soaked field at Toronto after one of the most enduring struggles of the meet.

The Bridge Club, C.O.T.C., Scarlet Key, and other societies were also graced with his presence at various times. He was Secretary of the Commercial Society this year. Bert has for a hobby the best of all hobbies, music. He also played Interfaculty and Interclass hockey, and while not a star in this line, he could hold his own with the majority of this class.

GORDON BEALL

ONE of McGill's most illustrious athletes, in his line of play, will graduate this spring in the person of Gordon Beall, who for the last three years has been a valued member of the McGill Intercollegiate Gymnastic team. Gordon also captained the team this year.

Quite, unassuming Gordie was born in Bangalore, India on December 28, 1915. He received his early schooling in that country, and emigrated to Montreal in 1928. Attended West Hill High School, and entered McGill in '34. Beall has also taken an active part in McGill affairs, especially in the German Dept. plays.

BARRY PORTEOUS

WITH this year's graduating class McGill will lose a fine sport and student in the person of James Barry Porteous. Barry, or "Buzz," as some people know him, was born in Toronto on January 21, 1917. After attending Selwyn House School and Westmount High School, he migrated to McGill in 1934 to enter the School of Commerce.

It was on the soccer field that Barry became known as an athlete, playing for the last two years on the Senior Intercollegiate team, and also for four years on the Commerce Interfaculty team. Barry also played Interfaculty and Interclass hockey and rugby.

He was elected to the Scarlet Society for '37 and showed further executive ability by being Vice-President of the Spanish Club in 1936-37.

A staunch supporter of the C.O.T.C., Corporal Porteous is now a qualified Lieutenant.

It is with regret that McGill bids good-bye to this fine fellow, one of her true sons.

PLANNING FALL

concentrate all of the flying equipment of the club at the camp for this instruction school. This will involve the use of two primary training gliders and the clubs sailplane. A towing winch of the same type as that used by the Gliding Club of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be used in conjunction with the Club's tow car for take-off purposes. It is intended also to use the shock-cord method of launching for preliminary training purposes.

Arrangements are being made to have the future gliding pilots make their home in tents located on the gliding site so that the most efficient use of the two-week period may be made. A floating population of fifteen students is the aim of the club's executive and an effort will be made to insure that all undergoing training will be able to make at least the simple evolutions possible with the primary gliders before the close of the school.

The cost of instruction and gliding charges is set at $1.50 per day. Meals and lodging in tents will come to a nominal additional charge. All applications to attend the Gliding camp and inquiries should be addressed to either Jim Simpson or Tom Kierans c/o the Engineering Building. As the number of students which the Club will be able to accommodate is naturally limited it is advisable to get in touch with the above as soon as possible.

day night, and discussions on current events and world political philosophy. Other evening events besides these have been decided upon, but these are strictly "sponsored" by the University of Queen's University has been invited to be discussion leader.

The officers appointed are as follows:

Chairman of the Program Committee, Andrew Kelen; chairman of Business Committee, Jack Patrick; chairman of Publicity Committee, Malcolm Davies; Lloyd McKen is in charge of the invitations extended to leaders.

Many of the leaders will be young graduates and members of the faculty. They will lay special emphasis on student problems and their abilities to meet these problems. The Committee and S.C.M. Executives will welcome any suggestions made by students.

MINOGUE AND ZATZ

Moreover by identifying themselves with an institution such as McGill, students are motivated by the desire to acquire an attitude superior to that of the ordinary layman. The negative argued that it was the acquisition of knowledge that makes possible the advancement of a student after graduation, and that it was this knowledge that constituted the basis of his services to society. Both sides were agreed that the alternative to the acquisition of knowledge was not "raising hell all the year as intimated in a popular college ditty."

It was the emphasis placed on the importance of extra-curricular activity in relation to strict academic study that earned the affirmative the decision of the judges.

A matter of vital current interest constituted the topic of the final resolution debated upon last night, namely, "Resolved, that this house would fight for the independence of Czechoslovakia." The participants in this debate were Bill McNaughton and Horace Baugh, speaking for the affirmative, and Monty Berger and Saul Zatz for the negative. The affirmative speakers dealt with necessity of preserving democracy, and for the curtailment of the expansion of dictatorships. They pointed out that by helping Czechoslovakia should her independence be threatened by Germany we would be preventing Hitler from "carving his murderous plans" destined to the destruction of democracy and freedom.

The speakers for the negative of the resolution maintained that by going to war to thwart Hitler's expansionist plans, ultimate victory for the democratic nations is not as certain as it may seem to be. The tremendous havoc which war will wreak are too great a cost to pay for the goal set forth by the affirmative speakers. The Reford Challenge Cup was awarded to the most deserving single participant in this debate, and was won by Saul Zatz of the negative. In his address Mr. Zatz dealt with the advisability of Canada's participation in a war to preserve an independent democratic Czechoslovakia. He pointed out that it would be in the best interests of Canada to remain neutral not only in such a war, but in any war. He maintained that no matter how justifiable a war may be the destruction of life and property which it is bound to cause is not worth the risk. He also drew attention to the strong anti-war sentiment in this province, and pointed out that participation in any overseas war may cause Quebec's secession from Confederation.

The judges of last night's debates were Prof. Noad, Lovell Carroll, prominent McGill law graduate, and Mr. Guy Tombs, eminent Montreal business man. The latter acted as chairman of the judges, and in announcing the judges' decisions, commended the high quality of the debates.

Morton Godine, Vice-President of the Debating Union, and President-elect, acted as chairman for the evening.

At a business meeting of the Debating Union held earlier in the day the following officers were elected: President, Morton Godine; Vice-President, Howard Minogue; Secretary, Bill MacNaughton; Junior

Literally Speaking

he knows he knows thoroughly, and he has expressed it fully, perhaps too fully. He has endeavored to show what meaning his personal experience has for him. Lacking genius, no writer can do more.

We are informed that D. H. Lawrence and Eugene O'Neill, the two geniuses of our age, have at times risen to heights of prophecy, and so far as we can judge them, have done something little short of genius. Whereas writers like T. H. Eliot, seeing life as The Waste Land, have found the prospect of grappling with new problems too much for them, and have fled to the bosom of the Church and the old morality, Lawrence and O'Neill have taken up the challenge to find a new set of values for this age at least to live by.

For that is the fundamental purpose of literature. Its aim is not merely to while away an idle hour with light amusement, to feed people with illusions like dope, nor is it to give bright illustrations of conventional morality, of the triumph of virtue and the punishment of vice. Its purpose is to express the spiritual experience of the best minds of each age, in the hope that this individual experience is part of a universal, and that from this chaos a new philosophy of life may be formed which will agree with reality. Possibly the hope is vain; at least the attempt shows a confident facing of facts.

We hate to conclude on this high moral note, but woe to him who had to make some excuse for writing this column, didn't we?

gal and Ross were called up to explain their letter in the Daily of March 14. They reiterated their statements in that letter. Mr. Tennant pointed out that there were several misstatements of fact in the above letter including the statement that $40 had been spent for traveling expenses by the executive, whereas in reality only $10 had been spent, and demanded that people make very sure of their facts before making a public statement.

It was also pointed out that the constitution referred to was obsolete, although it had been followed as completely as possible. For this reason, the executive had prepared a new constitution for ratification by the Society.

Mr. Kierans moved a vote of confidence in the executive which was approved by a large majority.

Mr. Duchastel then reviewed the doings of the executive during the past year showing how they had spent advantageously a great deal of time furthering the interests of the Society. The articles of the new constitution dealing with elections were passed by the Society. These provided in part that all sponsors and nominees should give before a meeting of the Society their reasons for nominating the candidate and their platforms respectively. As the meeting broke up the executive were congratulated on all sides.

McCAIG ADDRESSES
LITERATURE CLUB

Mr. Aberhart and his ideas on "What Alberta needs" will be the topic of Miss Dorothy McCaig's discussion at what is probably the last meeting of the Literature Society which is taking place in the Psychological Lab of the Arts Building, at 3 p.m. this afternoon.

Judging by her reactions when interviewed last night, the lass from Alberta certainly does not favour the Social Credit plan and in order to support her point of view she will show her collection of cartoons and satirical articles which hardly present Mr. Aberhart and his scheme in a flattering light.

Miss McCaig's lecture will be made up of a commentary upon these cartoons, which will be presented in the form of slides and quotations from "The Rebel," an anti-Social Credit newspaper.

An election of officers for next year will be held before the meeting.

ARTS, SCIENCE STUDENTS. Registration for the Faculty of Arts and Science.

A provisional registration for courses of the next session will be introduced this year. It is to be held on the afternoons of April 11th to 14th inclusive, Monday to Thursday, immediately before the Easter vacation. All students are to register for their courses of the session 1938-39 at that time. Previous to registration they should consult their advisers and the heads of the departments in which they contemplate taking honour courses. This registration will need only to be confirmed by the students in September unless they desire to change it, or are obliged to do so as a result of failure in their examinations. Such changes will be made in September at the usual time of registration.

Registration for Arts and Commerce will be held in Room 20, Monday to Thursday, April 11th to 14th, 2 to 5 p.m.

Registration for Science will be held in the office of Dr. W. H. Hatcher, Room 300, Chemistry Building, during the same period. Note: Only students continuing in the course leading to the Science degree are required to register at this time.

Students are advised to consult the official bulletins of the various buildings for subsequent notices concerning this provisional registration.

II. New Regulations Concerning Advancement and Supplemental Examinations.

The present regulations on page 30-31 of the Announcement are superseded by new regulations. These regulations make a change in regard to supplemental examinations, the removal of conditions and the status of limited undergraduates and others who cannot be promoted to a regular year. The regulations will be posted on the Bulletin Board of the Arts Building and elsewhere on Thursday, March 17th.

III. Meeting of the Dean and Students of the Faculty.

Students of the First Year in particular and all others interested will be addressed by the Dean in Moyse Hall on Tuesday, March 22nd, at 12.30. The Dean will explain the policy of the Faculty and the new regulations and he will at the same time advise students how to proceed in making the choice of their course of study.

IV. Reports of Examinations.

Students of the Faculty will receive in June an individual report of the results of their examinations. This report will inform them as to their standing under the new regulations and indicate what they are required to do in order to be admitted to regular standing in case they are deficient. In order to receive this report in June students must register in April. Failure to do this will necessitate considerable delay in the sending of the report to them.

THE GRADUATES' SOCIETY OF McGILL UNIVERSITY

One of the oldest established of the Societies at McGill, the Graduates' Society, has been a valuable contributor to the life and welfare of the University. The idea of a Society of McGill graduates originated between 1850 and 1860, when the McGill University Society was formed in Montreal. It was hoped that this organization would eventually include all graduates, but it was not until May, 1876, that a general meeting of all the graduates was called. Three weeks later a constitution and by-laws were adopted, and in 1880 the Graduates' Society of McGill University was incorporated by Act of the Quebec Provincial Legislature.

In these years the Society had charge of several important functions. Of these, one was the Founder's Festival, an annual reception held in Molson Hall in commemoration of the founder of the University. Another was the Graduates' Dinner, held annually on the evening of Arts Convocation. The Society was very helpful in raising funds for University purposes. The Library Fund, begun in 1876, is of much value in making important additions of books to the Library. The administration of the University was also shared in by the Society, which elected representative fellows to the Corporation.

There was, unfortunately, a lapse of interest and activity from 1901 until a reorganization in 1911. In this latter year a campaign for $1,000,000 was instituted and a considerable stimulus given to graduate interest in the University.

From 1911 until the outbreak of the War, the Society undertook the development of three main activities, the Stadium (now known as the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium), with its Graduate Guarantee Fund; a reunion, originally proposed for 1913, planned for 1915 and abandoned on account of the War; and formation of the Advisory Board of the Students' Council in 1913.

The War activities of the Society, the first record of which is in the minutes of August 12th, 1914, gave a new impulse, which brought with it a large increase in membership during 1915 and 1916. The Society was instrumental in raising several units at McGill for overseas service, which units reflected great honor and credit on the University throughout the course of the War.

In 1919, with the resumption of pre-war organization, the first step was the appointment of a permanent secretary. This was followed by the revision of the Constitution, the appearance of the "McGill News," the quarterly magazine published by the Graduates' Society, and various other new activities.

In the revision of the Constitution, the idea was to make the Society as broad as possible to include graduates all over the world, either as individual members or as members of branch societies. As it was felt that a local society might hinder the activities of the parent society, it was decided not to have one in Montreal. A special exception, however, was made for the women graduates, whose Alumnae Society was continued as in the past. In order to accentuate the fact that every graduate member, wherever he or she lived, would have an equal say in the affairs of the Society, the revised constitution planned that the Society should function solely by mail vote and through the columns of the "McGill News." It was not even intended to hold an annual meeting, and the only general meetings to be held would have been on such occasions as reunions. However, when the committee reported, the Society insisted on an annual meeting, which serves the purpose of receiving the various reports and the results of the elections.

In 1921 was held the first reunion in celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the University. Another reunion was held in 1926, and these reunions have been repeated each five years, in 1931 and 1936.

Under the new constitution, the lack of a Montreal Branch has been felt to be a distinct drawback. At both reunions, the unknown factor has been the local graduate, the committees having had great difficulty in estimating the probable attendance at the various functions of the Montreal graduates. Consequently steps were taken towards the formation of a Montreal Branch, the Constitution of the parent society was amended, and the local branch was launched in the autumn of 1928, under the leadership of Mr. H. M. Jaquays, M.A.Sc.

Three of the Governors of the University are elected from the Graduates' Society, three Graduates' Society representatives serve on the Athletics Board, and two on the Advisory Board of the Students' Council. The Graduates' Society, through its magazine, the "McGill News," keeps touch between the University and the graduate body at large.

Since the war, the Society has been credited with the accomplishment of several activities of interest to University life. In 1920, more than one million dollars were contributed by the graduates during the Centennial campaign. In 1921 a very successful Graduates' Reunion was held. In 1923 the Graduates' Endowment Fund was started, which now amounts to more than $90,000. In the same year the Society obtained recognition of its importance to the University by being given representation on the Board of Governors. In 1924 a complete Directory of Graduates was compiled and published. In 1926 another successful Graduates' Reunion was held. At the present time the Society is promoting three of its main activities, the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium - Armoury Building Fund, the formation and interest in Branch Societies, and the publication of the "McGill News."

This outline would not be complete without a reference to the activities of the Alumnae Society, which is composed largely of graduates of the Royal Victoria College and which operates as a branch of the Graduates' Society. They arrange for lectures to be given on Founder's Day, usually by a newly appointed member of the Staff; an active interest is taken in the Federation of University Women, both National and International; and support is given to the University Settlement and the hospital libraries. A pleasant function which the Alumnae Society sponsors is an annual tea given to the women of the graduating class.

DARTMOUTH UNDERGRADUATE
DAILY BLASTS BORING
COURSES, MOSSGROWN
CUT SYSTEM

Claims Hanover Faculty Hinder Learning by Detached and Apathetic Stand

In accordance with its avowed editorial policy of "croaking, and croaking loud about the soggy spots in the cake of College life..." the daily Dartmouth, Indian undergraduate newspaper, inaugurated an attack on Dartmouth academic conditions Tuesday.

An editorial, calling for a "swift kick to knock the dust out of Dartmouth's baggy green pants," described most Dartmouth men as having an entirely wrong conception of the purposes of a college education. This "infantilism" or "gogooism" is the result of a faculty which "lives in a vacuum and grinds out lectures like so many rusty phonographs."

Harder Curriculum Demanded

Teachers are criticized for not attempting to make their courses as interesting and stimulating as they might be. Growing student apathy can be traced to this faculty disinterestedness. The Dartmouth summarizes the undergraduate attitude to studies as a "game the object of which is to see how little you can make the teacher think you are capable of learning."

Cut System Motheaten

Cutting rules are another evil attacked by the Dartmouth. The existing cut system is said to "take the student's mind off his purpose in coming to college, and relegates intellectual responsibility to the dean's office."

The editorial hastens to assert its admiration of the College as a whole, however, terming it "the best college we've ever been to, and we don't wish we were anywhere else. While we're here enjoying it... as individual students, as a newspaper, we'll be chiefly interested in what's wrong with it."—Harvard Crimson.

SUDDENLY A GREAT RUCKUS.

We were standing there in a kind of a daze, and suddenly a great ruckus came up behind us... "Mush... trail... fore... hell... whoa." We were in the midst of a wolf pack. No, a dog pack. Out of the terrific dog yapping that always accompanies a dog sled coming to a sudden stop and out of a lot of fur and whiskers came a mighty voice. "How fur is New Hampshire, pardner?"

"Uh... er... why..." we were at a loss for words.

"If yew don't know that, then how fur is it to Alaska?"

Do you know how far it is to Alaska yourself? We didn't think so.

"What day of the week is it?"

We knew that one. It was Thursday.
